We had a really great Week of Worship! Thank you, Pastor Self.

Next week we will continue our lessons on the Fruit of the Spirit with lessons on Joy and Peace.

In math we will be transition from sorting activities to making patterns. We did our first graph, a leaf graph. The children all did well on that project.

The letter will be S for Seeds. We will continue the plant study in science. In social studies we'll learn the traditional story of Christopher Columbus. That will be the start of a maps unit which will continue into Nov.

Every quarter I evaluate the children on their personal knowledge. That includes their address and a parent's phone number, their parent's name, and their own birthday. These are things, that for their own safety, police recommend that the children know in case the unthinkable happens. Since this is such individual information, please help your child to learn these things sometime this year. Thanks so much for your help.

Thank you to those who have already sent in some trinkets for children to dig out of the sand at our booth. Little seem to love this and older ones too. If you are out shopping for party favors or at the Dollar Store, please pick up some for our booth. We'll need about 150 items. The sign-up sheet should be available online or at my door next week.

I am so glad that every RSVP for the Seed Supper so far has been all positive. If you have not yet returned the Seed Supper invitation, please do so on Monday so I can make the necessary accommodations. Drink and table service will be provided.

All of the permission slips for the pumpkin patch have been turned in. Some have already paid, $2 per adult and $6 per preschool child over 2 years. Please turn this in by the 17th if you still need to pay. Thanks.
